TechniServe also offers redundantly hosted sites located in three separate locations throughout the United States. If the primary location is experiencing problems serving the website, the TechniServe server irons redirect traffic to one of the failover locations in other parts of the US. In this way users should experience little or no site down time.

TechniServe, Inc. is dedicated to providing quality software and services that responsively support our customers' core business functions more cost effectively than our competitors.
